

CLAIMS

1. Portable container system for the application of enemas comprising: a container (1), a hose (2), and a supporting structure (3).
- 5 2. Portable container system for enema application described in Claim 1, comprising a supporting structure (3) that supports the container which has the right height to cause a difference in pressure between the container and the intestine - necessary for the solution to enter the intestine freely.
- 10 3. Portable container system for enema application described in Claim 1, comprising a supporting structure (3) that may be disassembled.
4. Portable container system for enema application described in Claim 1, which has a special characteristic – that all the pieces of its structure (3) fit inside the container (1), either together or separately.